Nurses Notes

ALLERGIC ASTHMA

Asthma is a narrowing of the airways with inflammation. You may be familiar with the signs and symptoms of shortness of breath, wheezing and or coughing.

Treatment

First avoid triggers such as pet danders, pollens from trees and plants. 2nd, make an appointment to see your provider. Your provider may refer some patients to an allergist to assess for specific allergens. 3rd your provider will prescribe inhalers and or allergy medications.

How to use your inhalers properly.

Your provider may prescribe inhalers. The first being a bronchodilator like albuterol or ventolin to relax the muscles of the airway. These are taken to relieve sudden short term symptoms by opening the airway and are also referred to as rescue inhalers. Use a spacer to help insure your medicine gets to your bronchioles and not your tongue or the back of your throat. The second medicine is the corticosteroid, sometimes called the controller, that helps to reduce the inflammation of the airway and is given by inhaler, or in pill form like prednisone or by injection. If you are given the inhaled kind then it should be taken 10 minutes after using the bronchodilator to help insure your bronchioles are open to better accept the steroid spray.
